

Vision

Dear Mr. President...

GCP's got its priorities straight. Now let's tell the candidates.

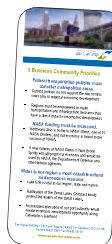

The Greater Cleveland Partnership (GCP) is working to establish the next presidential agenda. Earlier this year, the GCP underwent a strategic planning process that revealed three priorities that members would like addressed by the next president.

"We represent 17,700 businesses. Imagine if their owners and leaders all told the presidential candidates the same three priorities toward improving Northeast Ohio's economy," says Joe Roman, president and CEO of the GCP.

So GCP has created handy pocket cards that you can have with you at all times in case an opportunity to interact with party nominees and their staff arises.

"We know that Ohio is going to play a big role in selecting the next president," said Roman. "We expect the candidates will make many visits to Ohio between now and Election Day." ●

GCP Priorities

- 1 Transportation policies must consider metropolitan areas.
- 2 NASA funding must be increased.
- 3 Water is Northeast Ohio's most valuable natural and economic resource.

Key projects that exist within these policies are the Opportunity Corridor, construction of a runway at NASA Glenn's Plum Brook facility in Sandusky, and relocation of the Port of Cleveland.
